

Moderna - Masters of Life and Death

11-19-2021

Moderna, the marketing company that sells one of the most profitable Covid vaccines (and almost nothing else) has filed for a patent that excludes National Institutes of Health scientists and millions of taxpayers who contributed their vaccine expertise along with more than $10 billions for the research. The basis for its claim of corporate entitlement is that its people designed the product – by which they mean the prettiest little container that induced many millions into taking its shot.

Not satisfied with a phenomenal profit margin of $4 billion from $5.9 billion in revenue in just six months of US sales it wants the exclusive right to screw the world by the same extravagant margin. Four of its top executives recently graduated to Forbes 400 riches Americans, but CEO Bancel's $15 billion (only chump change to the greedy) fell to $7 billion because public censure is forcing the Biden regime to consider the billions of unvaccinated who would have a better chance of survival if the US licensed production to poor countries.

Moderna cannot hope to make a dent in the 11 billion units of vaccine the world needs, but prevent them from accepting an untold numbers of dead as it accrues billions for investors and management. The US Defense Production Act grants the US power to mandate the production of critical products for both civilian and military needs in times of emergency. But one should never expect a capitalist state to call upon such critical powers unless it's for the preservation of its class interest, and the poor are certainly not in their class.

An unexplained oddity between the two mRNA vaccines is that in the US myocarditis (heart inflammation) was detected in a significant number of young adults that used the Pfizer, but not in those using the Moderna vaccine. On the other hand in Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Norway that same myocarditis was discovered in the Moderna, and the first three nations recommended a switch to the Pfizer. So much for scientific consistency.

When the vaccination program got underway we soon learned that many vaccinated still tested positive for the virus and were told that while it doesn't absolutely prevent contracting the disease they are mild cases that rarely require hospitalization. In the middle of August this year Israel, which uses the Pfizer for almost all of its vaccinations, we learned that almost 60% of its hospitalized Covid cases concerned those with vaccinations. Israel went on to give its people the booster shot before it was barely discussed in this country.

Under capitalism the truth is an effective sales pitch. The big brains have reasoned it all out for you so just shut up and take your medicine. By all means get vaccinated but it is still your general health that will determine your survivability. Initial reports found more than a third of the seriously ill and deceased had many comorbidities – especially obesity, hypertension, diabetes. Most are caused by unhealthy lifestyle that capitalism has more interest in promoting than preventing. Imagine if most Americans preferred to prepare their own healthy food, take exercise walks in scenic places, and gather, masked if necessary, to discuss ways to exchange this system for one that is based on the free development of the individual – one that makes all positive inclinations possible and in that way opens up pathways to solutions to horrors done by capitalism.
